Title 47—TELECOMMUNICATION

Chapter I—Federal Communications Commission

PART 19—CITIZENS RADIO SERVICE

Definition of "Remote Control" of Radio Station Transmitting Equipment

[FCC 59–212]

At a session of the Federal Communications Commission held at its offices in Washington, D.C., on the 11th day of March 1959:

The Commission having under consideration the provisions of § 19.63 of its rules which provides that a Class A base or fixed station in the Citizens Radio Service may be authorized to be used or operated by remote control from another fixed location or from mobile units, under certain conditions; and

It appearing that a definition of the term "remote control" previously contained in the rules governing the Citizens Radio Service was inadvertently omitted at the time of the revision of Part 19 by the Commission's Second Report and Order, FCC 58–798, adopted July 31, 1958, in Docket No. 11994; and

It further appearing that a definition of the term "remote control" would be of assistance to applicants in the Citizens Radio Service since it contains a statement of the condition under which the Commission considers a transmitter to be operated by "remote control", and specifies that, under other conditions, approval by the Commission is not required; and

It further appearing that the definition of the term "remote control" adopted herewith for inclusion in Part 19 of the Commission's rules is in accord with the Commission's administration of the provisions of § 19.63 of its rules and is consistent with the definition which previously appeared in Part 19 of the rules; and

It further appearing that the amendment adopted hereby is interpretative and will not adversely affect any party, and thus that prior notice of proposed rule making is unnecessary under the provisions of section 4(a) of the Administrative Procedure Act; and

It further appearing that the amendment ordered hereby is in the public interest and that authority therefore is contained in sections 4(i) and 303 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended;

It is ordered, That effective May 1, 1959, Part 19 of the Commission's rules, Citizens Radio Service, is amended as set forth below.

(Sec. 4, 48 Stat. 1066, as amended; 47 U.S.C. 154. Interprets or applies sec. 303, 48 Stat. 1082, as amended; 47 U.S.C. 303)

Released: March 13, 1959.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION,
[SEAL] MARY JANE MORRIS,
Secretary.

1. Amend § 19.2(c) Miscellaneous definitions, by the addition of the following in proper alphabetical order:

Remote control. The term "remote control" when applied to the use or operation of a citizens radio station means control of the transmitting equipment of that station from any place other than the location of the transmitting equipment, except that direct mechanical control or direct electrical control by wired connections of transmitting equipment from some other point on the same premises, craft or vehicle shall not be considered to be remote control. (Authorization for the use or operation of any transmitting equipment by remote control in the Citizens Radio Service is granted only in the case of Class A base or fixed stations.)
