1896

Executive Order.

It is hereby ordered that the following described tract of land in Alaska bordering upon the right bank of the Yukon River, in and surrounding the native village at Fort Yukon, situated approximately in latitude 66° 32′ north, longitude 145° 17′ west of Greenwich, be and the same is reserved, subject to any vested rights existing, for the use of the U. S. Bureau of Education and the natives of Alaska of indigenous race, residing now or hereafter at said village or within the limits of said reservation, viz:

Beginning on the right or north bank of the Yukon River, at corner No. 1 of the accepted survey of the Protestant Episcopal Mission site, surveyed by C. E. Davidson in 1906, and represented on official plat approved April 2, 1908; or if said corner does not now exist, beginning at the witness corner thereof, or at a point where the northwest boundary of said survey reaches the bank of said river;

Running thence with that boundary on the same course through corner No. 4 20 chains to a point; thence northwesterly 40 chains to a point 20 chains distant from the river bank; thence southwesterly on a course parallel to the first line, 20 chains to the bank of the Yukon River; thence with said bank to the place of beginning; but excluding and excepting a tract along the river front claimed and occupied by T. H. Beaumont, and marked for him by survey in 1913, with an estimated area of 75 acres, as represented upon a diagram accompanying this order and made a part thereof.

WOODROW WILSON

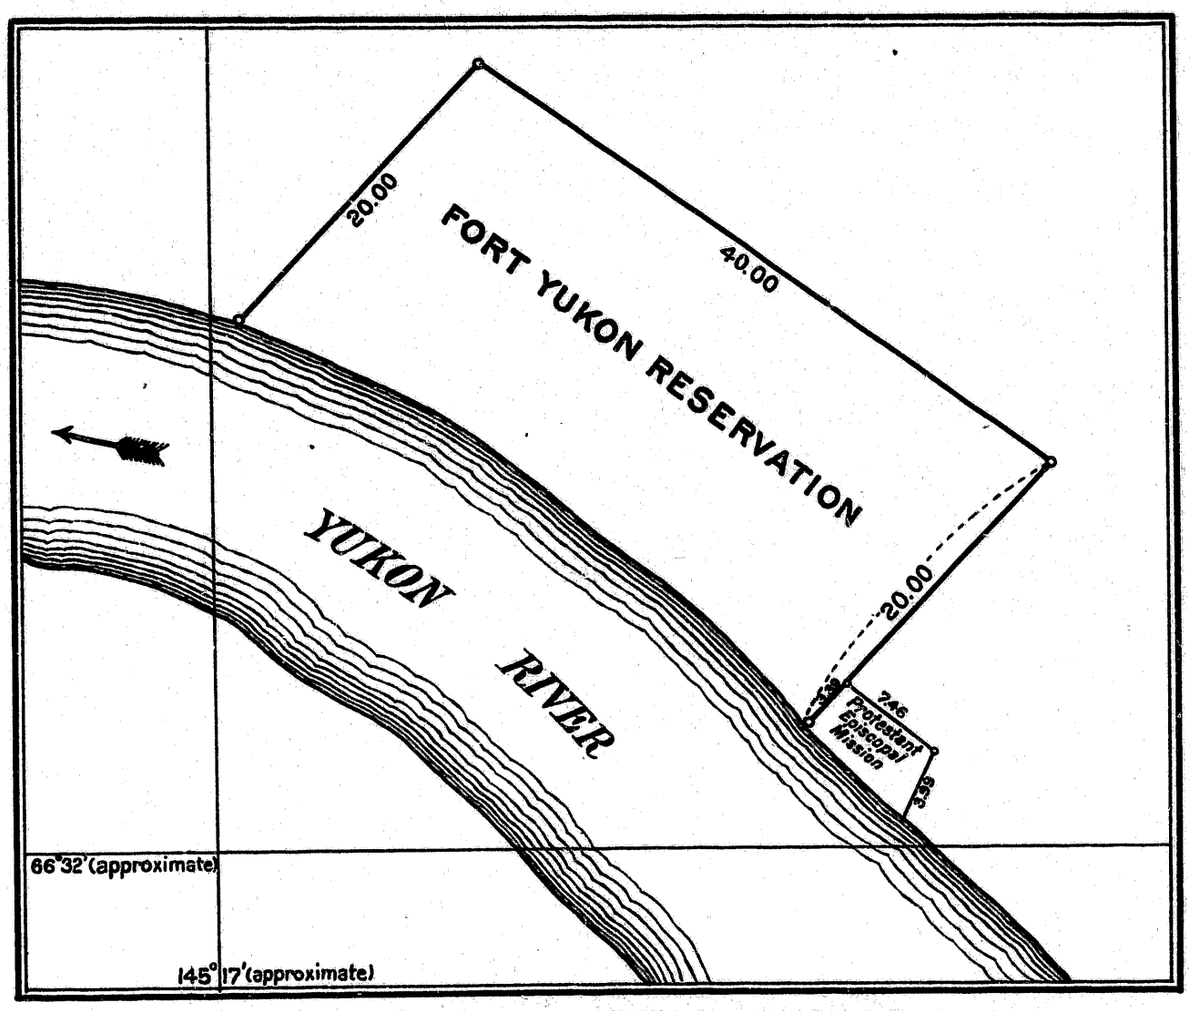

THE WHITE HOUSE,
February 24, 1914.

[No. 1896.]

FORT YUKON RESERVATION

For Use of Alaskan Natives of Fort Yukon Village
ALASKA

On Yukon River, east of mouth of Porcupine River and adjacent to the Arctic Circle:
Estimated Area 75 acres.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR
BUREAU OF EDUCATION
P. P. Claxton, Commissioner