EXECUTIVE ORDERS.

General Executive orders from Oct. 31, 1914, and special exceptions to the civil-service rules from Oct. 5, 1914, to Sept. 14, 1915, are published in the Thirty-second Annual Report. The following are general orders and special exceptions from Sept. 15, 1915, to Aug. 31, 1916:

I. GENERAL ORDERS AMENDING THE CIVIL SERVICE RULES.

EXAMINATION OF ENLISTED MEN.

April 11, 1916.

Section 3 of Rule V of the civil-service rules, which provides that—

3. Persons serving under enlistment shall not be examined without the written consent of the head of the department under which they are serving—is hereby revoked. This action is taken in view of statements of the War and Navy Departments that the requirement serves no useful purpose, in which opinion the Civil Service Commission concurs.

Enlisted men will be admitted to examinations for which they are shown to be eligible; the question of their discharge, if offered civil employment, will be determined by the military or naval authorities.

EXCEPTION OF POSITION OF OPERATIVE, OFFICE OF AUDITOR FOR POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT, FROM REQUIREMENTS OF APPORTIONMENT.

June 19, 1916.

Civil Service Rule VII is hereby amended by adding at the end of section 2 the following:

"And operatives, office of the Auditor for the Post Office Department, for the audit of accounts and vouchers of the Postal Service by means of labor-saving devices; and operatives so appointed shall not be eligible for transfer or promotion to apportioned positions or for assignment to other work."

The effect of this amendment will be to except from the requirement of apportionment the operatives described and to permit the holding of a local examination. The work of operatives is mechanical rather than clerical, and to a great extent has been done by women employees in the nonapportioned service transferred from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing under section 7 of Rule X. The Secretary of the Treasury states that many persons appointed from the clerical registers of distant States, in accordance with the apportionment, have not been adapted to the work, thus occasioning embarrassment to the department. Operatives should be young women with nimble fingers who understand the kind of work they will be called upon to perform and will not become dissatisfied with the work and seek transfer or promotion. The entrance pay is low, the work is fluctuating, and it is therefore desirable to appoint women from a local register of eligibles that they may be available as the work may require, and whose services can be terminated without embarrassment.

This order is issued upon the recommendation of the Secretary of the Treasury, with the approval of the Civil Service Commission.

REVOCATION OF AUTHORITY FOR TRANSFER OF OPERATIVES AND OTHER EMPLOYEES IN BUREAU OF ENGRAVING AND PRINTING TO CERTAIN POSITIONS IN OTHER PARTS OF TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

June 19, 1916.

Section 7, Civil Service Rule X, is hereby amended by striking therefrom the following words:

"Money-order assorter and skilled laborer acting as money-order assorter in the office of the Auditor for the Post Office Department."

Section 7 of Rule X permits the transfer of operatives and other employees in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to certain positions in other parts of the department, among them those mentioned above, without examination and without charge to the apportionment, for the performance of certain work. As the audit of money orders is now done by labor-saving devices, the part of the rule quoted is no longer in effect.

February 10, 1916.

Mr. Joseph W. Harris may be reinstated as fourth assistant examiner in the Patent Office, the year limit of eligibility for reinstatement being waived in his case. Mr. Harris is said by the Secretary of the Interior to have proved particularly efficient in cases involving metallurgy and electro chemistry during his service of nearly six years in the Patent Office, and to have been continuously engaged in prosecuting applications for patents from his resignation on April 3, 1912, to the present time, thus having had an experience of nearly 10 years in patent work. In view of the technical character of the position and the experience of Mr. Harris, and his evident qualifications for the position, the commission joins with the Secretary of the Interior in recommending an Executive order to permit his reinstatement.

February 11, 1916.

Mrs. Annie E. Hudson may be appointed to a position in the classified service without reference to the civil-service rules. Mrs. Hudson has passed the age at which she would be eligible to take the civil-service examination. She is now holding a temporary position in the municipal service of the District of Columbia. The Civil Service Commission does not recommend the issuance of this order.

February 11, 1916.

Mr. Monroe Ryles may be appointed as a messenger at $720 per annum in the Federal Trade Commission without reference to the civil-service rules. This order is issued upon the recommendation of the chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, who states that Mr. Ryles is peculiarly qualified for the duties to which it is proposed to assign him. The Civil Service Commission does not concur in the recommendation.

February 11, 1916.

The temporary appointment of Miss Helen Wrenn as clerk in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, may be made permanent without regard to the civil-service rules. This order is issued upon recommendation of the Secretary of Commerce, who states that she was certified for temporary appointment after passing the civil-service examination in stenography and typewriting, and that with the exception of a brief period she has been serving in the bureau named continuously since April 1, 1915; that she is unusually efficient and has shown special aptitude in the performance of the various duties assigned to her; and that it is therefore believed that her permanent appointment will prove of very great value to the bureau, which is especially in urgent need of competent and trained assistants at this time, owing to the extraordinary amount and character of work devolving upon it.

February 21, 1916.

Executive order No. 2263, of October 26, 1915, authorizing the appointment of certain persons who were former employees of the United States Commission on Industrial Relations to positions in the competitive classified service without reference to the civil-service rules, and amended by Executive order No. 2284, of December 14, 1915, is hereby further amended by adding the following names: Miss E. M. Green, Mr. Carl Hookstadt.

February 22, 1916.

Executive order No. 2306, of February 7, 1916, authorizing the appointment of Miss Margaret S. Neate as printer's assistant in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing without certification by the Civil Service Commission, is hereby amended to read as follows: Miss Margaret S. Neate may be appointed a printer's assistant in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing or as a skilled laborer in the Government Printing Office without certification by the Civil Service Commission. Miss Neate passed the examination for printer's assistant in January, 1915, but has not been reached for certification. She is the daughter of Dr. John S. Neate, who served for 22 years in the United States Army, and rendered most valuable service in fighting yellow fever, submitting himself for experiment, and died in 1912 from a disease believed to have been brought on by his service. This order is issued upon the recommendation of the Secretary of the Treasury. The Civil Service Commission does not concur in the recommendation.
