The areas described aggregate approximately 1,360 acres.

The lands are located near Briceland, California. They are generally timberlands and are, for the most part, inaccessible. The greater part of the land is mountainous and too rough for cultivation. All the land contains some Douglas fir timber. The vegetation consists of a mixture of timber and non-timber trees. There is some brush of manzanita, toyon, and scrub oak. The soil is clay loam. The greater value of these lands is probably the timber found thereon. The annual rainfall is about 77 inches.

No application for the restored lands may be allowed under the homestead, desert-land, small tract, or any other nonmineral public-land law unless the lands have already been classified as valuable or suitable for such type of application, or shall be so classified upon the consideration of an application. Any application that is filed will be considered on its merits. The lands will not be subject to occupancy or disposition until they have been classified.

This order shall not otherwise become effective to change the status of the restored lands until 10:00 a. m., on the 35th day after the date of this order. At that time the said lands shall become subject to application, petition and selection, subject to valid existing rights, the provisions of existing withdrawals, the requirements of applicable laws, and the 91-day preference-right filing period for veterans and others entitled to preference under the act of September 27, 1944 (58 Stat. 747; 43 U. S. C. 279–284), as amended.

Veterans preference-right applications under the said act of September 27, 1944, may be received on or before 10:00 a. m. on the 35th day after the date of this order, and those covering the same lands shall be treated as though simultaneously filed at that time. Applications filed under the act after that time and during the succeeding 91 days shall be considered in the order of filing. Applications by the general public under the public-land laws, including the mineral-leasing laws, received on or before 10:00 a. m. on the 126th day after the date of this order shall be treated as though simultaneously filed at that time, where the applications are for the same lands, otherwise, priority of filing shall govern.

Inquiries concerning the lands shall be addressed to the Manager, Land Office, Bureau of Land Management, Sacramento, California.

W. G. GUERNSEY,
Acting Director.
