Executive Order.

I.—A strip of land one hundred (100) feet wide (fifty (50) feet on either side of the telegraph line) is hereby reserved, subject to private rights, for the use of the Signal Corps, United States Army, in the operation and maintenance of military telegraph lines in Alaska, through the public lands of the United States, along the following-described route—being the "cut-off" between Chena and Fairbanks, Alaska—viz:

> Commencing at the eastern boundary line of the right-of-way of the Tanana Valley Railroad Company, where the present Alaskan Military Telegraph Line crosses the said right-of-way at the eastern limit of Chena, Alaska; and thence in a northeasterly direction, following and adjoining the said right-of-way, approximately one (1) mile to the southwestern boundary line of the James Ballentine homestead; thence, across the said James Ballentine homestead, following and adjoining the said right-of-way of the Tanana Valley Railroad Company, to and across the Frank C. Duval homestead and the Henry Hyde homestead, to where the said right-of-way leaves the northeastern boundary of the last-named homestead; a distance of approximately two (2) miles in a northeasterly direction; thence, following and adjoining the said right-of-way of the Tanana Valley Railroad Company, approximately one (1) mile in a northeasterly direction, to a point on the line of the said railroad known as "The Junction"; thence, following and adjoining the said right-of-way of the Tanana Valley Railroad Company, approximately five (5) miles in an easterly direction, to where the line of said railroad crosses a slough, by means of a bridge, to reach its depot in the city of Fairbanks, Alaska; thence, in an easterly direction, following an unopened wagon-road, for approximately seven hundred and fifty (750) feet; thence, following an opened wagon-road for approximately eighteen hundred and ninety (1890) feet, to a slough at the western boundary of the village known as Graehl, Alaska; thence, following a wagon-road or street through said village, approximately one-fourth mile, to a dry slough; thence, across said slough, to an island (which island comprises the Harry Waite homestead), and along the western bank thereof, approximately one-half mile, to where the said telegraph line crosses another slough opposite to, and enters on the other side, the United States Military Reservation of the Fairbanks Wireless Telegraph Station;—being a total approximate distance of ten and one-quarter (10.25) miles.

II.—The following-described lands, reserved by Executive Order of May 24, 1905 (G. O. No. 83, War Department, June 5, 1905), for the purposes of a military telegraph line in Alaska, having become useless for the purposes for which reserved, are hereby placed under the control of the Secretary of the Interior, under the Act of Congress of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 103), for disposition as provided therein, or as may be otherwise provided by law, viz:

The right-of-way between Chena and Fairbanks, Alaska, along the following-described route:

> Commencing at the eastern boundary line of the right-of-way of the Tanana Valley Railroad Company, where the present Alaskan Military Telegraph Line crosses the said right-of-way at the eastern limit of Chena, Alaska, and thence, in an easterly direction, paralleling and approaching the Tanana River, to where the said line forms a loop to the north to enter the city of Fairbanks, Alaska.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

THE WHITE HOUSE,

March 13, 1908.

[No. 769.]