1918

Executive Order

Mr. John M. Savage, of New Jersey, formerly vice and deputy consul at Belfast, Ireland, from October 1, 1885, to 1889, and vice consul and consul at Dundee, Scotland, from October 6, 1893 until the fall of 1897, when he was summarily removed from his position, may be appointed to a post in the consular service without regard to the Executive Order of June 27, 1906.

It appears from the records of the State Department that an inspection of Mr. Savage's office in 1896, resulted in a report to the Department that the office was in excellent order. Mr. Savage is under fifty years of age, the limit fixed in the Executive Order of June 27, 1906, for applicants who desire to take the examination.
