Paris, France,
June 7th, 1919.

Whereas, on November 27, 1918, the President made the following order to-wit: "The President heretofore allotted six million dollars out of the National Security and Defense Fund which was put at the disposal of Ambassador Francis for the purchase in Russia of commodities which might otherwise find their way to the enemy. A small portion of this six million dollars has not been expended and in the case ofthe portion which has been expended there should be a certain recovery in the way of raw materials or the proceeds from the sale thereof. It is recommended that any unexpended portion of this fund and such recovery as may be had from the expended portion thereof, as well as any claims of this Government arising from the expenditure of this money, be transferred, assigned and delivered to the War Trade Board of the United States Russian Bureau, Incorporated, to become a portion of its assets for utilization in connection with general purpose of the corporation to render economic aid to Russia.

Approved and ordered 27th November 1918. WOODROW WILSON."

And, whereas, the transfer contemplated by the foregoing order has never been consummated, and it has become expedient to dissolve and liquidate the affairs of the War Trade Board of the United States Russian Bureau Incorporated. I hereby order and direct that the aforementioned order of November 27, 1918 shall be and the same hereby is rescinded and withdrawn."
